PROGRAM

GÉRALD TREMBLAY

MAYOR OF MONTRÉAL

Montréal is both pleased and honoured to host the members of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network, gathered here for their annual meeting.

Let there be no doubt: creativity is the vital fuel we will need to meet the challenges set before us in the years to come. I am therefore delighted to be sharing, along with you all, in the best practices developed by each of our cities to guarantee development that is sustainable from every standpoint—whether economic, cultural or social—and serves all of their inhabitants.

With the responsibilities entrusted to cities growing ever more complex, it is all the more vital that we strengthen our collaborative efforts and exchange ideas to make the best of the limited resources at our disposal.

In spite of the hard work that awaits us, I hope you will take the time to discover, or rediscover, our city, one that has been constantly growing—and growing more beautiful—in recent years. And that you'll get a sense of how, as a member of the Creative Cities Network and a UNESCO City of Design, Montréal fosters creativity in myriad ways.

Wishing you an excellent stay.

HELEN FOTOPULOS

MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE RESPONSIBLE FOR CULTURE, HERITAGE, DESIGN AND THE STATUS OF WOMEN AT THE VILLE DE MONTRÉAL

Montréal is one of those cities with a unique character. It is embodied in the burgeoning creativity of our design scene and the genius of its practitioners, whether emerging or well established. That creativity was recognized in 2006 when our city joined the UNESCO Creative Cities Network.

Culture is vital to the development of the communities in which we live. Indeed, it has been identified by UNESCO as the fourth pillar of sustainability. I believe the primary mission of a city is to build on the diversity, drive and talent of its creators, in all disciplines, so as to enhance the living environment for all of its citizens.

Today, I am particularly proud to be welcoming the world's other creative cities. I hope that all participants in this meeting will, once again this year, perpetuate the tradition of energy and enthusiasm that is so well entrenched within the UNESCO Creative Cities Network.

To one and all, I bid you welcome!

MONIQUE GAGNON-TREMBLAY

MINISTER OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS AND MINISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR LA FRANCOPHONIE GOVERNMENT OF QUÉBEC

A close partnership with cities, major public institutions and civil society is essential to complement the Québec government's international action, particularly in conjunction with initiatives undertaken by UNESCO.

In supporting the Annual Meeting of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network, the Government of Québec recognizes the importance of highlighting the diversity and scale of Québec's creative and cultural offerings and developing stronger ties with other cities that are members of the network stretching across five continents. Since 2006, Montréal's Bureau du design has been playing an essential role in promoting these kinds of partnerships.

I hope that the outcomes of this meeting will contribute to strengthening existing collaboration, which provides a wealth of lessons for all member cities in the Network.

DAVID A. WALDEN

SECRETARY-GENERAL CANADIAN COMMISSION FOR UNESCO

Today, more than ever before, cities are addressing critical issues such as how to encourage social cohesion, combat racial discrimination, promote and implement green practices. The creative industries play a key role in building the shared identity and sense of community necessary to build harmonious societies.

Since Montréal was officially designated a UNESCO City of Design in 2006, it has undertaken numerous initiatives, both in Canada and abroad, to build awareness and share knowledge about the importance of design in urban development. Hosting this Annual Meeting of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network is one more demonstration of Montréal's deep commitment to the concept of Creative Cities and to the Network itself.

The Canadian Commission for UNESCO is proud to be a partner in the Annual Meeting of the UNESCO Creative Cities Network and salutes the City of Montréal for providing this valuable opportunity for cities to share their experiences, successful practices and vision for the future.

Sylvie Berkowicz is a journalist specialized in design with a well-established career in television, in particular as a producer of programs dedicated to fashion and design. After having worked as an editor for several publications (Voir, Azure, Intérieurs, Plaisirs de Vivre and Grafika, among others), she headed Créativité Montréal, a competition and webzine focusing on made-in-Montréal design. She currently produces the TV program Mixeur, broadcast worldwide on TV5, which covers design and the culinary arts. She is also Editor-in-Chief of the Mixeur guides and website, which feature Montréal's best restaurants and news on fine dining in Québec. Ms. Berkowicz is also Producer of rX5, a program about residential design.
